Creativity in the Classroom is five fun and engaging workshops for classroom teachers, teaching artists and other interested community members. The series is designed for those new to teaching the visual and performing arts as well as those with a full range of experience. Workshops include drawing, painting, ceramics, dance, music, drama, poetry and playmaking.

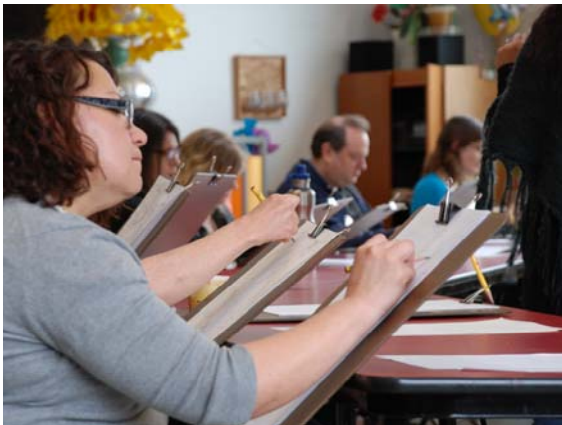

Participants explore their own creativity and gain skills and knowledge to integrate a variety of disciplines into language arts, social studies, science and math. They are introduced to the Visual and Performing Arts Content Standards and explore discussion strategies that apply to the arts and to all student work. Strong emphasis is placed on practices that support the creation of a safe, supportive environment for creative exploration and expression. Community Building and English Language Development strategies are part of each session.

This was an amazing experience and one of the most useful and challenging I've had as an educator. I now see what is possible and how to make it applicable to my students and my subject matter.

-Griselda S., 9th-12th grade Social Studies Teacher

I now see many possibilities in the integration of art. I now believe that I can tap into students' creativity more and see potential in all students and participation of all my learners. This was a great way of seeing my potential in the arts and also the students'.

-William E., Math Coach

This was a great series, full of proven brain-compatible strategies that will help our students achieve. I notice students' creative potential much more now and see that art is a great way of reinforcing concepts and understanding.

-Johanna C., 4th grade Teacher
